

ABOUT ME

Justin Hasken

“Reset, readjust, restart, refocus... as many times as you need to.”

The quote above is one that reminds me everyday that it is okay to restart, to take time and perfect your work. The quote is 100% How I live my life each day. The way I see life is that if you aren't making the most of everyday that you are on this planet then what are you doing? You were lucky enough to get this life so make the most of it.

I am Justin Hasken, and I am a student at Western Technical College studying for my associate degree in digital marketing. I have always had a strong love for all things digital and had always been intrigued by how many people you can reach through the power of the internet. I look to one day have my own digital marketing business and look to help small businesses grow and succeed by giving each of my clients everything I have to offer.

Outside of school and studying, I spend a lot of my free time keeping in shape by lifting weights and playing some basketball with some buddies of mine. I am all about having a happy and healthy lifestyle. Everyday is another day to improve who you are as a person and better yourself in any way, shape, or form that you can. I strongly encourage everyone to do the same!
